Advanced Introduction to Comparative Constitutional Law

Mark Tushnet, Harvard University, US

'Tushnet provides an authoritative review of the growing literature on comparative constitutional law. . . This book, however, is much more than a review of the existing literature and is a must read for both newcomers and those with more experience in the field.'

– H. Shambayati, Florida Coast University, Choice

Mark Tushnet, a world-renowned scholar of constitutional law, presents an introduction to comparative constitutional law through an analysis of topics at the cutting-edge of contemporary scholarship. His authoritative study investigates constitution making, including the problem of unconstitutional constitutional amendments; recent developments in forms of constitutional review, including 'the battle of the courts'; proportionality analysis and its alternatives; and the emergence of a new 'transparency' branch in constitutions around the world. Throughout, the book draws upon examples from a wide range of nations, demonstrating that the field of comparative constitutional law now truly encompasses the world.

Contents: Introduction 1. Constitution-Making 2. The Structures of Constitutional Review and Some Implications for Substantive Constitutional Law 3. The Structure of Rights Analysis: Proportionality, Rules, and International Law 4. The Structure of Government Conclusion Index

Contract Law

A Comparative Introduction

Jan M. Smits, Maastricht University, the Netherlands

'Contract law is more international in substance and character than most other legal subjects. Thus, in particular, modern contract law in Europe rests on the same historical and philosophical foundations, and the hypothetical will of reasonable parties to a contract has usually been the focal point in the evolution of its doctrines. Today, in the age of the European Union, the internal market is the most powerful motivation, and driving force, for legal harmonization. Contract law is thus predestined for the development of common reference texts, such as the Principles of European Contract Law, and common teaching materials, such as Jan Smits' Contract Law. Jan Smits' book provides a splendid introduction to the key questions, themes, and features of contract law. It is not aimed at one specific national audience but can, and should, be read by students across Europe.'

A Short Introduction to the Common Law

Geoffrey Samuel, Kent Law School, UK and Sciences-Po, Paris, France

An ideal textbook to introduce the common law to advanced international students.

'Common law has remained enigmatic for lawyers from the civil law legal culture. This book presents a wonderfully compact introduction to the English common law and explains concisely why it is as it is today. Geoffrey Samuel offers insightful and scholarly first-rate representation of those characteristics which stand out for the civil law lawyer. Clarifying and supporting diagrams are especially helpful for non-common law lawyers. Samuel's A Short Introduction to the Common Law is highly recommended for anyone looking for clear and fluently written basic insight into the common law and its historical foundation.'

KEY TITLE

Comparative Law as Critique

Günter Frankenberg, Goethe University in Frankfurt, Germany

'A leading figure in critical legal studies and renowned scholar of comparative constitutionalism, Frankenberg urges us forward, offering a new taxonomy for critical work. He illustrates its potential in terrific chapters on recent transnational legal movements: to regulate the veil, provide access to justice and reinvigorate human rights as a language of justification. A methodological tour de force.'

Comparative Property Law

Edited by Michele Graziadei, University of Torino and Collegio Carlo Alberto, Italy and Lionel Smith, McGill University, Canada

'This excellent and wide-ranging book offers the best and most comprehensive comparative analysis of property law I have seen in years. The book covers a myriad of fascinating topics. It contains contributions from first-rate property scholars from all over the world and despite its breadth, it makes for a delightful read. The chapters of the books contain a plethora of new insights into the law and practice of property in different countries. Any reader will learn a tremendous deal from the book. Its chapters offer a rich discussion of assets, doctrines, institutions and legal systems. It is difficult to imagine such wealth of legal resources and knowledge in any other single source. The book is highly recommended to all readers.'

Comparative Law and Regulation

Understanding the Global Regulatory Process

Edited by Francesca Bignami, George Washington University Law School and David Zaring, University of Pennsylvania, US

'Comparative Law and Regulation invites and assists scholars and policy makers to reassess how regulation operates within their own countries in light of the experience of other countries. The twenty-one chapters, written by leading scholars, weave together multiple disciplinary perspectives to capture the rich complexity of regulatory processes in an accessible and helpful manner. Bignami and Zaring have edited a commanding contribution to the emerging field of comparative law and regulation.'

Comparative Contract Law

Edited by Pier Giuseppe Monateri, University of Turin, Italy

'Comparative Contract Law redefines approaches to comparative law by incorporating what might be called "internal comparative law", while also exploring transnational law, party autonomy, and the legal environment beyond states and their diverse legal systems. The book is also innovative given its inclusion of comparative studies in law and economics and law and literature, which shows that disciplines that are usually considered to be "external" to law are indeed relevant for the assessment and for the reform of law.'

Comparative Insolvency Law

The Pre-pack Approach in Corporate Rescue

Bo Xie, University of Dundee, UK

'The focus of this text is on the pre-pack strategy, but the author sensibly locates this analytical spotlight within the broader environment of corporate insolvency law, particularly the rescue context. Bo Xie engages fully with the heated debate(s) associated with pre-packs and supports her analysis with extensive underpinning research drawn from scholarly literature, practitioner insights and policy documents. The work is lucid and comprehensive with a strong comparative element. Deserving of wide readership, it is an essential primary point of reference for any future discourse within the field.'

Law's Political Foundations

Rivers, Rifles, Rice, and Religion

John O. Haley, Washington University in St. Louis, US

'With magnificent scope, Law's Political Foundations leads the reader through government structure, political regimes, and law throughout the world. Haley's work deftly explains why China, Japan, Europe, and Latin America developed different forms of public and private legal regimes. Geography, war, agriculture, and belief shaped government and law; this novel framework permits Haley boldly to straddle empires and centuries in this captivating study of legal development.'

Comparative Constitutional Law in Asia

Edited by Rosalind Dixon, University of New South Wales, Australia and Tom Ginsburg, University of Chicago Law School, US

Comparative constitutional law is a field of increasing importance around the world, but much of the literature is focused on Europe, North America, and English-speaking jurisdictions. The importance of Asia for the broader field is demonstrated here in original contributions that look thematically at issues from a general perspective, with special attention on how they have been treated in East Asian jurisdictions.

Comparative Competition Law

Edited by John Duns, Monash University, Arlen Duke, Melbourne Law School and Brendan Sweeney, Monash University, Australia

'It is impossible to be a competition law practitioner without an understanding of competition regulation in the world's leading economies. It is equally impossible to practice in the area without a detailed understanding of economics. This collection of essays by leading internationally acclaimed academics and practitioners makes an important contribution to both areas. There are excellent chapters that explain the key areas of economic theory, as well as informative chapters on international trends. This collection will prove to be an indispensable addition to the library of any serious competition lawyer.'

Comparative Law and Economics

Edited by the late Theodore Eisenberg, formerly Cornell University, US and Giovanni B. Ramello, Università del Piemonte Orientale and International Programme IEL – Institutions, Economics and Law, Italy

'This remarkable volume shows off the eclectic potential of the comparative law and economics brand. It is comparative not only in assembling scholars from around the world and in zipping from Taiwanese civil disputes to international high courts to drug regulators for case studies, but most importantly in highlighting an empirical methodology that welcomes a range of complementary approaches that broadens the core economic analysis of law. It's a fascinating tour across boundaries.'

Comparative Tort Law

Global Perspectives

Edited by Mauro Bussani, University of Trieste, Italy and University of Macao, S.A.R. of the P.R. of China and Anthony J. Sebok, Yeshiva University, US and Swansea University, UK

'An admirably sprawling survey of tort law in its broadest sense. Some chapters offer important comparative insights into malpractice, products liability, liability for economic loss, and tort damages. Others helpfully address related topics including jurisdiction, choice of law, insurance, and the tort-crime interface. The reader is also treated to historical, economic, philosophical, and cultural analyses of tort, and to informative chapters on the operation of tort law in non-western legal systems. Entirely apt to our global era, Comparative Tort Law is an important resource and the perfect antidote to narrow, parochial conceptions of tort law's character and significance.'

Comparative Administrative Law

Second Edition

Edited by Susan Rose-Ackerman, Yale University, Peter L. Lindseth, University of Connecticut, School of Law and Blake Emerson, Yale University, US

This comprehensive overview of comparative administrative law builds on the first edition with new and revised chapters and the addition of new topics and geographical coverage. The Handbook's broad, multi-method approach combines history and social science with more strictly legal analyses. This updated and expanded new edition demonstrates the growth and dynamism of recent efforts – spearheaded by the first edition – to stimulate comparative research on public law, reaching across different countries and scholarly disciplines.

Comparative Criminal Procedure

Edited by Jacqueline E. Ross, University of Illinois, College of Law and Stephen C. Thaman, Saint Louis University, School of Law, US

'Contemporary criminal procedure may be seen as a global garden in which myriad blossoms, with names like "lay judges", "anticipatory bail" and "confession bargaining" have sprung out of a grafting of old adversarial-inquisitorial roots. In this impressive volume, contributors from England, India, Italy, Taiwan and the United States examine many facets of these new hybridities. Cross-pollination among national and supranational systems, differences and similarities at various stages of the criminal process, and even efforts to avoid that process altogether, are explored. The result is a comparative analysis that enriches understanding of global criminal procedure.'

Comparative Labor Law

Edited by Matthew W. Finkin University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, US and Guy Mundlak, Tel Aviv University, Israel

'This important book will be essential reading for all those who wish to understand the reasons for the continuing divergences and similarities between national systems of labor law in the age of modern globalisation and the growing influences of global competition, internationalisation and regionalisation on labor standards and processes. The authors not only provide new and sometimes provocative insights into traditional topics such as freedom of association, workers' representation and the personal contact of employment, but also newer areas such as workplace discrimination, privacy and new forms of contracting.'

European Family Law

Edited by Jens M. Scherpe, University of Cambridge and Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, UK

'The four volumes that make up this monumental project represent the insight and experience of many fine family law scholars. The volumes examine themes, individual countries, and distinct pan-European institutions and developments. Jens Scherpe's tour de force is to pull all this together in the final remarkable volume. For a non-European like me, it is fascinating to read about harmonisation and diversity, privacy and rights, pluralism and protection. This is a truly wonderful achievement.'

Class Actions in Context

How Culture, Economics and Politics Shape Collective Litigation

Edited by Deborah R. Hensler, Stanford Law School, US, Christopher Hodges, Centre for Socio-Legal Studies and Wolfson College, Oxford, UK and Ianika Tzankova, University of Tilburg, the Netherlands

'Class Actions in Context is a penetrating analysis of class and group actions worldwide. A group of international scholars brings to bear legal, economic and political analyses of this evolving judicial remedy. It explores various substantive claims ranging from consumer protection to securities litigation. Drawing on case studies of practice as well as legal analysis, it demonstrates the importance of factors running from litigation finance to background cultural traditions. It is worth study in every legal system.'

Rights-Based Constitutional Review

Constitutional Courts in a Changing Landscape

Edited by John Bell, University of Cambridge, UK and Marie-Luce Paris, University College Dublin, Ireland

'This collection is a timely survey of the role of constitutional courts in a comparative perspective – it provides an excellent summary of developments in a range of jurisdictions, and locates them in a broader social and political context. Among other factors, it considers global trends in increasing international and regional human rights protection, increased recognition of second and third generation rights, and a move towards decentralization in democratic governance. It is bound to be of broad interest to both comparative constitutional lawyers and scholars.'

Comparative Law for Spanish–English Speaking Lawyers

Legal Cultures, Legal Terms and Legal Practices

S.I. Strong, University of Missouri, School of Law, US, Katia Fach Gómez, University of Zaragoza, Spain and Laura Carballo Piñeiro, University of Santiago de Compostela, Spain

Comparative Law for Spanish–English Speaking Lawyers provides practitioners and students of law, in a variety of English- and Spanish- speaking countries, with the information and skills needed to successfully undertake competent comparative legal research and communicate with local counsel and clients in a second language. Written with the purpose of helping lawyers develop the practical skills essential for success in today's increasingly international legal market, this book aims to arm its readers with the tools needed to translate unfamiliar legal terms and contextualize the legal concepts and practices used in foreign legal systems.

Comparing the Democratic Governance of Police Intelligence

New Models of Participation and Expertise in the United States and Europe

Edited by Thierry Delpuech, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, Sciences Politiques Grenoble and the Université de Grenoble Alpes in Grenoble, France and Jacqueline E. Ross, University of Illinois, College of Law, US

'Intelligence-led policing' is an emerging movement of efforts to develop a more democratic approach to the governance of intelligence by expanding the types of expertise and the range of participants who collaborate in the networked governance of intelligence. This book examines how the partnership paradigm has transformed the ways in which participants gather, analyze, and use intelligence about security problems ranging from petty nuisances and violent crime to urban riots, organized crime, and terrorism. It explores changes in the way police and other security professionals define and prioritize these concerns and how the expanding range of stakeholders and the growing repertoire of solutions has transformed both the expertise and the deliberative processes involved.
